Altoona, Oct. 7, 1863.

AVOID THE NEXT DRAFT!

THERE IS A PREVAILING EXCITEMENT among the people of Altoona and vicinity about THE SECOND DRAFT—just so much about the draft as for making the Three Hundred to pay exemption. All patriotics but choose rather to stay at home with their beloved ones, for their support, than to risk their lives in this bloody war. Now, to bring the matter to a close, we will inform the public that by buying their goods at the GREEN STORE, Corner of Branch and Annie street, East Altoona, kept by GEIS & CO., they will

SAVE THE THREE HUNDRED

in a short time. They have just received a large and well selected stock of DRY GOODS AND GROCERIES, which they are selling for Cash at the lowest living prices.

A large assortment of LADIES' COATS AND CIRCULARS, ranging in price from $5 50 to $12 00.

The attention of the public is particularly drawn to the fact that they are selling Brown and White Muslin from 35 to 45 cents; Calicoes from 12½ to 25 cts.; Delaines from 18 to 35 cents per yard.

They have always on hand a large assortment of MEN AND BOYS' CLOTHING, HATS, CAPS, BOOTS, SHOES, and, in fact, everything kept in a first-class Store.

Altoona, Oct. 7, 1863.

LOOK NOT UPON THE DARK SIDE.

BY ETTA S. ALLEN.

Oh, look not on the dark side,
Life has enough of care
To weave into its tissues,
Enough black threads are there:
But turn thee to the sunlight,
Or if o'ercast the sky,
Remember clouds will be dispelled
By sunshine by-and-by.

Look not upon the dark side,
But count thy blessings o'er,
And though will start in wonder
At the largeness of thy store:
Or if thy haughty neighbor hath
Of wealth the lion's share,
Oh, think he lacketh thy home rest,
And though hath not his care

Think of thy hoarded treasures,
Thy stores of princely wealth,
Thy innocent true pleasures,
And Life's best blessing, health.
Stand forth in crimsoned garments
That Virtue's hand hath given,
Bearing upon thy manhood's brow
The signet seal of Heaven.

Go to thy life work bravely,
Toil in thy labor's yoke,
And light shall be the bondage,
And harmless fall the stroke—
While plodigh and loom and ledger,
And workshop, forge and field,
Send forth their titled nobleness,
Truth's sceptre proud to wield.

Aye! thou art of the noblest,
Thou standest in the van:
For the best of God's creations
Is a honest toiling man:
One who with firm endeavor
Does battle for the right,
And keeps the lamp of Virtue
Well-trimmed and burning bright.

Then look not on the dark side,
Though mists may hang between
The world-life of the present,
And the far, dim Unseen:
Yet soon those clouds of Error,
Dispersed shall roll away,
And then shalt see the dawning
Of a new and glorious day!

Select Miscellany.

DOESTICKS ON WOMEN, HORSES, ETC.

The moment you give a woman charge of anything that will do any work, that very minute that very woman begins to drive that working thing to its very utmost capacity, be it an animal or a machine; and the chances are about equal that she'll drive the animal to the verge of a quadrupedal grave, or break the machine into shivered splinters in the attempt to do three days' work in twelve hours.

Every person who has ever observed a human female driving a horse, will perfectly sympathize with the idea that I here set forth. Every woman who drives a horse, not only drives that horse to the very top of his speed, flogging him up hill, and whipping him down hill, and thrashing him the full length of every level, but she gives him a sound trouncing every time he stops to drink, under the wretched pretence that she is trying to keep the flies off. Let a woman, any woman—for they are all alike on this subject, and no one has any more sense than any other one—understand that Flora Temple had trotted her mile in 2.19¾, and let that woman have Flora to drive for a day, and she'd flog the life out of the gallant little bay mare if she didn't keep up the same speed for twelve or fifteen hours a day; and would, the minute her speed fell short of twenty-five miles an hour, whip the blessed little beauty till she dropped down in her tracks.

If a woman owned Flora Temple, she wouldn't hesitate to match her to run a race with an express train through a swampy country, and would run with a horse-whip, the hide all off the little mare if she didn't distance the locomotive.

There never was a woman yet who would or could drive a horse reasonably, and treat him properly. I don't know what the reason is, unless women have conspired to visit on the poor beasts their bitter vengence for the ungraceful and unwomanly appearance in which the horses are sometimes implicated with the woman."

Here I will—though in base treachery to my own sex—reveal to the ladies of the land a terrible secret, that has heretofore been kept by tacit consent of our masculine half of creation, population, and the census. It is this:

"Every man knows in his heart, and freely admits to every other man, that a woman is never so ungraceful, so unfeminine, so unwomanly, so absolutely unlovable, as when on horseback."

Mount a woman on a beast of a horse and you instantly deprive her of all tenderness, all femininity, all the thousand peculiar, nameless graces of women, and transform her into a she-centaur—something that few men can love, and that no man can admire.

You, young ladies, who desire to apply an infallible test to the professed affection of your lover, I can give you one: Appear on horseback before the man who says he loves you; if his affection is deeply rooted enough to stand this awful trial take him by all means; for the manly love that still survives the fearful spectacle of its loved object on horseback, can never be shaken by any subsequent earthly trial.

This is a semi-secret. All men know it, but I belive it has never been communicated in this public and unreserved manner to the singing sex. Since the first of January last I have known in my own small circule of acquaintance of some twenty-four men who have enlisted for life, driven to it only by the disenchanting sight of their misguided sweet-hearts.

One of these unfortunate men is now in the Insane Asylum, a raving maniac; his sweet-heart appeared to him not only on horseback, but she was also wearing a man's hat—this last atrocity was too much for a brain weakening already by the discovery that his lady-love played the accordeon. And in a single week he succumbed; and now in his maniac's cell he "continually calls out for his darling Sally Ann, and begs with tears in his eyes, for the doctor to prescribe for her something that will cure the side-saddle fever.

This episode has been long, too long, and I now return to my original theme, about women and machine work. Give a woman charge of a locomotive warranted to run forty miles an hour, and she'll hang a potato pot full of dumb-bells on the safety-valve, and in four hours she'll break the engine into "old iron and copper scraps," trying to get fifty miles an hour out of her. Give a woman a captaincy of the Great Eastern, warranted to cross the ocean in nine days, and she'd send boat, and all on board, including herself, to the bottom, trying to run from Liverpool to New York in forty-eight hours less than the regular time.

Very well, women are similarly, likewise in the same manner, after the same sort, given to perform the same way with the other machines. Sewing machines for example: in fact, especially sewing machines.

To tell the truth, sewing machines are the subject of this article.

I've got a wife; a bran-new article—white bonnet, white vail, long stockings, hoops, curls; embroidered things, in the way of clothes; worked other things, in the way of clothes; in fact, more clothes of every conceivable variety than I ever dreamed could belong to any one woman—but I've got her, all complete. How I got her I wonder. In fact I think that when any man regards contemplatively that the most wonderful work of the Creator, a wife, his soul must be filled with admiration for himself, as a wonderfully clever fellow, to win such a contrivance, or else he must be overcome with supreme thankfulness at his own good luck.

I've not yet ceased wondering how I got my wife: but I've got her, all complete, as said before: and if you don't believe it, there she is—

No, by George! there she isn't. She's gone down town to get some screws or needles, or something, for her sewing machine.

(While she's gone, I'll say something that every married man has thought, but no one has said before. The most astounding thing in the world to a modest young man, is to wake up in the morning after you ain't a bachelor any more, and see a pair of women's slippers on the floor, a pair of long stockings on the chair, and a heap of women's other dressing mysteries, piled up in places where you have been used to seeing only boots and empty cigar boxes. Don't tell your wives, for it isn't a good thing to let them know that you've ever been otherwise than in a state of the most perfect and thorough self-possession.)

However, to come back for the third or more'th time, to the sewing machine question.

My wife—my wife—MY WIFE—listen to that—MY WIFE!!!—my wife wanted a sewing machine. Of course, if she had asked for a small locomotive-engine, and a circular railroad round the parlors, she should have had them, or rather would have had them, and so I bought that sewing machine, and what is worse I paid for it. If I hadn't paid for it, I could make them take it back; but as it is, I cherish no such delusive hopes, and can only sit down here disconsolately, and warn your husbands not to go and do likewise.

My, or rather her sewing machine came—then succeeded four days how to make it go—four days of the intermittent presence of a woman from the factory, who was sent to "teach the machine" as the proprietor remarked, but whose mission on earth it seemed to me to be drive my dear wife wild, and set her to breaking needles on the machine.

The machine-makers of course sell needles and everything used about their infernal machines.—The woman that "teaches the machine," I verily believe, has a heavy percentage on all the needles sold by the firm. The woman would come; machine, under her management, would run perfectly well. Woman would go away; wife would try to make acquaintance with machine. Machine would get restive, and, in a fit of spite, go to work and break all its needles, one after the other—also, would break some important screw, or spring or strap, or hand, or wedge, or wheel. Result would be thus: Wife, in a passion of indignation, headache, chagrin, passion, impatience and spleen, would post down to factory. Up would come the inevitable woman that "teaches the machine."—She would look at machine, who recognized her as on old acquaintance, and would smile visibly from every ounce of its seventy-eight pounds weight. Woman would smile superciliously at wife, touch a screw on machine with the tips of her dainty fingers, and would walk away. Machine would go all right for an hour or two, when needles would break, also screws, also strings, straps, springs and bands—then the woman, etc.

In four days, however, my wife (ha! ha!) mastered the intricacies of the machine, and is now its master; and the machine knows it, and obeys her accordingly.

But in that distressing interval while the machine sulked, she broke three packs of needles, a bushel of screws, a gross and a half of springs, and destroyed about a mile and a quarter of leather belting. However, she has mastered it at last, but I am not at all certain that the last evil is not worse than the first.

In her triumph at having won a victory over the obstreperous machine, she sews up seams to the extent of four or five miles a day.

I have tried to keep her in work. I have bought twenty or thirty pieces of cotton cloth, which she has made up—flannel, ditto calico the same; woolen also, carpet also, and oilcloth, even more also. We have had the machine a month; she has made me shirts enough for a regiment of Zouaves in active service; she has made shirts enough for a dozen first class hotels; she has made me so many pairs of pantaloons that she has got sick of them before I have had a chance to try half of them on, and has begun to give them away to beggars; the amount and description of garments she has made for herself could only be stated in three volumes.

Now, having made all the new garments she could, she has begun to make the others twice over. Last Monday morning I found my shirts all sewed together with a double seam all around, so that I might as well try to get into an unopened sardine-box. She has taken in her hand four babies, of ages ranging from two to eight years, and has gone to making clothes for them. She has made them so many garments that each one of those unfortunate children has to be undressed at least nine times in an afternoon, to try on the products of our wonderful sewing machine.

I expect, every minute, that she will make a descent on my aequarium, and sew my fishes' tails together, or fasten the lobster's legs to the breast fins of the eels. How can I stop her? I appeal to husbands.

I have it: I will have some shirts made of vulcanized India rubber—if that doesn't break the machine all to splinters I will buy half-inch boiler-iron; then, if all fails I will get a company of miners and sappers to come and blow the house to thunder, while we are both gone to the theatre.

Hopefully,

A MUSKETO STORY.

The musketoes down on the Mississippi river are supposed to be rather large, and tolerably ferocious. I am not prepared to believe the story of the man who came to look for his cow one day, and found the skeleton on the ground and a large musketo on an adjacent tree picking his teeth with one of the horns. But I will say that it would take a man gifted with considerable imagination to exaggerate the prowess of those Southern swamp musketoes. We were discussing one night in a hotel in New Orleans, when one gentleman of the party told the following anecdote:

"There was once a man in the city who insisted on it that he was musketo-proof, and who offered to lie down in the worst place that could be found and let musketoes bite him for an hour for $10. My friend hearing him make the proposition took him at his word, and with several others, they both started off for a nice marshy place between the town and Lake Ponchartrain—a regular musketo paradise. Arrived on the ground the musketo chap took off his shirt and coat, and lay down on his face. The insects came down in crowds, lighted on his back, and biting commenced. If the man scratched he would lose his ten dollars: even squirming was prohibited.—But he stood it like a Trojan; didn't give utterance to a single grunt. Half an hour passed. The ground was covered with gorged musketoes, who sucked until they were as drunk as judges, and were staggering about in a most discreditable style. A quarter of an hour ensued: more intoxicated suckers, and the man was unmoved and indifferent as a log. Suddenly one of the gentlemen took two or three strong puffs at his cigar, and then chucked it on the musketo chap's back. First he winced, then he squirmed, then he yelled and scrambled up.

"I have come across a considerable number of musketoes in my life," he remarked, scratching with one hand and working into his shirt at the same time, "but I assure you gentleman, I never see a musketo like that before. He wasn't much to hum, gentlemen," he continued; "but when it come to biting, gentlemen, that musketo was a snorter."

"He lost his ten dollars and went home grumbling that when he made that 'ar bet he hadn't calculated on no bumble bees bein' smuggled in."

IN THE WRONG STATE.

In the good old times before the war, writes a good old friend in the lower regions, the candidates for office in the southern country were accustomed to resort to strange dodges to conciliate the people and get their votes. One of them, in the old dominion, while stumping the outskirts of his district, came early one morning upon a clearing where a solitary man was hoeing. Alighting from his horse, he took an extra hoe standing by, and commenced working very vigorously, at the same time delicately hinting who he was, and for what purpose he had come. The man, however, was obtuse, not seeming conscious of his visitor's design till just as the sun was sinking beneath the horizon, when he suddenly brightened up and said;

"Wall I reckon you're mighty good at hoein' and if I was only over in Old Virginny I'd vote for you.

The dismayed politician did not let the grass grow under his horse's feet till he was safely out of North Carolina, where he had labored hard all day for naught.

HOW SAL DISGRACED THE FAMILY.

A trayler in the State of Illinois some years ago come to a lone log hut on the prairie near Cairo, and there halted. He went into the house. It was a wretched affair—an empty packing box for a table, while two or three chairs and dissagreeable stools graced the reception room, the dark walls of which were further ornamented with a display of tin ware and a broken shelf article or two. The woman was crying in the corner, and the man, with tears in his eyes and pipe in his mouth, on a stool, with his sorrowful looking head supported by the palm of his hand. Not a word greeted the interloper.

"Wall," he said, "you seem to be in awful trouble. What's up?"

"Ah, we are almost crazy, neighbor, and we ain't got patience to see folks now."

"That's all right," said the stranger not much taken back by the impolite rebuff; but can I be of any service to you in all this trouble.

"Well, we're lost our gall; our Sal's gone off and left us," said the old man in tones of deep despair.

"Ah! do you know what induced her to leave you?"

"Well, we can't say, neighbor, as how she's so far lost as to be induced but then she's gone and disgraced us," remarked the afflicted father.

"Yes, stranger, and—not as I should say it is her mother—but thar warant a pooter gal in the West than Sal; she's gone and brought misery upon her own head now," followed the sickened mother.

"Who has she gone off with," inquired the visitor.

"Well, there's the trouble. The gal could have done well, and might have married Martin Kehoe, a capital shoemaker, who although he has but one eye, plays the flute in a lively manner, and makes a good livin'. Then look, what a life she has deserted; she was surrounded by all the luxury in the country," said the father.

"Yes, who knows what poor Sal will have to eat, drink and wear now?" groaned the old woman.

"And who is the fellow that has taken her into such misery?"

"Wy she's gone off and got married to a critter called an editor, as lives in the village and the Lord only knows how he is to earn a living.

☞ A countryman once brought a piece of board to an artist, with the request that he should paint upon it St. Christopher as large as life. "But," returned the artist, "that board is much too small for that purpose." The countryman looked perplexed at this unexpected discovery. That's a bad job," said he: "but look'ee sir, ye can let his feet hang down over the edge of the board."

ROMANCE IN REAL LIFE.

In one of the townships of this county, a little north of Bucyrus, dwelt a well to-do widower about fifty, with an only son of twenty two or three. Mr. —— (we withhold names for obvious reasons) had been a widower for many years, and became weary of that mode of living; he accordingly determined to marry again. The determination once formed, the next thing was to find the woman necessary, which in this country is not at all difficult. Fortunately for him a widow lady resided near him, who had a daughter possessing all the requirements. She was a beautiful girl of twenty years, accomplished and sprightly—just the one he wanted. To be sure, she was rather young, but Mr. —— was young also. Sometimes his mind would wander to the mother, who was quite as handsome as the daughter, and almost as young in appearance; but he had made up his mind to marry the daughter, and sat about it with a will. He did not mention his determination to his son, fearing the idea of marrying one so much younger than himself, might expose him to ridicule.

In the meantime his son had became deeply enamored of the widow, and had likewise determined upon marrying her. He did not communicate the fact to his father, for the same reason citing ridicule by marrying a woman so much older, than himself. They both commenced calling at the house of the widow, and frequently met each other there. This circumstance annoyed them both immensely. The old man thought very naturally, that the young man was there for the young lady, and the young gentleman as naturally supposed the old one was there for the widow.

As the matter progressed the meetings of the father and son of that place became frequent, and the more often it occured, the more intolerable it became. Finally, Mr. —— determined to speak to his son on the subject.

"Charles," said he, "I have determined, after much consideration, to marry, and thought it but right and proper to make you acquainted with my determination."

"Very good," replied Charles; I considered it very proper that you should do so. And, speaking of marrying, I have concluded to marry, myself."

"I approve of the idea," returned the old gentleman. "you are of a suitable age to settle down. May I ask the name of you intended?"

"Mrs. ——," exclaimed Charles, up and assuming a defiant look.

"Whew!" whistled the old gentleman: "fine woman, Charles, but isn't she a trifle too advanced in years?"

"I think not," said he: "but who have you decided upon?"

"Why, Charles, it is a very curious circumstance, but I have determined to marry her daughter."

"Daughter!" exclaimed Charles; "Why you are at least twice as old as she is; I don't object."

The matter was thus happily settled, and in the course of a few weeks it was satisfactorily arranged with the widow and daughter, and the parties were married.

Very soon after the marriage was consummated, they all discovered that they had made a great mistake. The son found that the widow was altogether too motherly for the wife of a young man of twenty-three, and the old gentleman found that a young lady of twenty was too volatile for a sober minded man of fifty. Disagreement followed, then neglect, and finally the thousand little quarrels, and snubbings, and bickerings, simmering down into a grand fight, which was kept up with slight variations, for three months.

Finally, they agreed permanently to disagree, and availing themselves of the ease with which divorces are obtained in Indiana, the whole four removed to Indiana, where in one time the divorces were obtained.

The four came home as they went, together, the son taking the daughter under his special charge, and the father doing the agreeable to the widow. Long before they had arrived at Bucyrus, they had arranged matters on an entirely different basis—the father and the widow made up a match, and the son and daughter ditto. The marrying was performed immediately on their arrival at Bucyrus. Up to date they all appeared will satisfied with each other, and it is to be hoped that they will long continue so.—Bucyrus (Ohio) Journal.

SEATS AT THE TABLE.—It was but a short time ago between Zanesville and Columbus, that the train stopped at a small village, not a hundred miles from the former place. The conductor crying out: "Fifteen minutes for dinner."

The passengers, of whom there happened to be a large number, rushed into the dining apartment and took their seats at the table, one of them depositing his carpetbag in the chair next to him. At the usual time the landlord passing around to make his collections, called upon the aforesaid passenger for his payment for dinner.

"How much?" says the passenger.

"Eighty cents," replied the landlord.

"Eighty cents for a dinner? why, that is extortionate."

"No, sir, it is not extortionate. Ain't that your carpet bag?"

"Yes, sir: that is my carpet-bag."

"Well, that carpet-bag occupies a seat, and of course I must charge for it."

"O! is that the case? Well, here is your eighty cents."

Turning to the carpet-bag, the passenger remarked: "Well, Mr. Carpet-bag, as you have not had much to eat, suppose we take something," at the same time opening its mouth, and turning therein half a ham, a roast chicken, a plate of crackers, and sundry other articles, amid the roar of laughter of the other passengers.

The prevailing opinion among the passengers was, that the carpet-bag won.

AN IRISH MIRACLE.—Miss Cobb, in an article on "The Humor of Various Nations," in the July number of the Victoria Magazine, tells the following story of an Irish definition of a miracle:

A priest in Ireland having preached a sermon on miracles, was asked by one of his congregation, walking homeward, to explain a little more lucidly "What a miracle meant." "Is it a miracle you want to understand?" said the priest. "Walk on then, there, forninst me, and I think how I can explain it to you." The man walked on, and the priest came after him and gave him a tremendous kick. "Ugh!" roared the sufferer, "why did you do that?" "Did you feel it?" asked the priest. "To be sure I did," replied the man. "Well, then, it would have been a miracle if you had not," returned the priest.

☞ They have sweet ladies down South. They are snuff dippers, and they chew. A Tennessee writer was helping play one of the "kissing games" at a house warming, and he says: "After a lively chase I caught her, and when, just as I was drawing the little angel into my arms, preparatory to embracing her, she said, "Hold on a minute—wait till I take my tobacco out of my mouth."

A YANKEE TRICK.

Some years ago, before railroads were invented, a cute Massachusetts Yankee was one day travelling in a stage in the State of Connecticut. The passengers stopped for breakfast at a place where the landlord was noted for his parsimony; and it was strongly suspected that he paid the driver to hurry off the stage before the passengers could eat a half meal, in order to save his victuals. The Yankee heard this talk, and he sat down to breakfast with the determination to eat his money's worth whether the stage left or not. While, therefore, the rest of the passengers were bolting their victuals in the greatest possible haste, the Massachusetts man took his time. The passengers had scarcely finished a single cup of coffee, and ate but a few mouthfuls, when they heard the unwelcome sound of the horn, and the driver exclaim, "Stage ready!" Up rise the grumbling passengers, pay their fifty cents and take their seats.

"All aboard, gents?" inquires the host.

"One missing," said they.

Proceeding to the dining-room, the host finds our Yankee friend very coolly helping himself to an immense piece of steak, the size of a horse's lip.

"You'll be left, sir! Stage is going to start!"

"Waal, I hain't got nothin' to say agin it!"

"Can't wait, sir, better take your seat."

"I'll be gaul darned of I dew, nuther, till I've got my breakfuss! I've got tew pay half a dollar, and I'm goin' tew get the valee on't! and ef yew calkalate I ain't, yew air mistaken."

So the stage did start, and left the hungry New Englander, who continued to attack the eatables. Biscuits, coffee, steak, &c., &c., disappeared rapidly before the eye of the astonished landlord.

"Say, Squire, them there cakes is 'bout East: fetch us another grist on 'em. You, (to the waiter) nuther cup uv that air coffee. Pass them eggs. Raise yew'r own pork, Squire?—this is amazin nice ham. Land 'bout here tolerable cheap, Squire, I calculate? Don't lay yew'r own eggs, dew ye?" and thus the Yankee kept quizzing the landlord, until he had made a hearty meal.

"Say, Squire, now I'm 'bout to conclude payin' my dewours tew this air table, but ef yew'd jist give us a bowl of bread and milk tew sorter top off with, I'd be much obleeged tew ye."

So out goes the landlord and waiter for the bowl, milk and bread, and set them before the Yankee.

"Spoon, tew, ef you please?"

But no spoon could be found. Landlord was sure he had plenty of silver ones laying on the table when the stage stopped.

"Say, dew yew think then passengers is goin' tew pay yew for a breakfuss and git no compensation?"

"Ah! what! do you think any of the passengers took them?"

"Dew I think? No, I don't think, but I'm sartin. Ef they are all as green as yew 'bout here, I'm goin' tew locate immediately and tew worst.

The landlord rushes out to the stable, and starts a man off after the stage, which had gone about three miles. The man overtakes the stage, and says something to the driver in a low tone. He immediately turns back, and arriving at the hotel, our Yankee comes out to take his seat, and says:

"Hoe'w air yew, gents? I'm glad tew see yew back."

"Can you point out the man you think has the spoons?" asked the landlord.

"Pint him out? Sartinly, I ken. Say 'Squire, I paid yew four ninepence for a breakfuss, and I calkalate I got the vallee on't. You'll find them spoons in the coffee-pot."

"Go ahead, all aboard, driver!"

A PERTINENT ANSWER.—Sterne, so celebrated as the author of "Tristram Shandy" and "the Sentimental Journey," was of Cambridge University—not a strict priest, but as a clergyman, not liking to hear with indifference his whole fraternity treated contemptuously. Being one day in a coffee-house, observed a spruce, powdered young fellow at the fireside, who was speaking of the clergy in a mass as a body of disciplined imposters and systematic hypocrites. Sterne got up while the young man was haranguing, and approached towards the fire, patting and coaxing all the way a favorite little dog. Coming at length toward the gentleman, he took up the dog, still continuing to pat him and addressed the young fellow—

"Sir, this would be the prettiest little animal in the world had he not one disorder."

"What disorder is that?" replied the fellow.

"Why, sir," said Sterne, "one that always makes him bark when he sees a gentleman in black."

"That is a singular disorder," replied the young fellow; pray, how long has he had it?"

"Sir," replied Sterne, looking at him with affected gentleness, "ever since he was a puppy."

Altoona Tribune.

ALTOONA, PA.

SATURDAY, NOV. 21, 1863.

☞ The chap who dishes up the local items for the Juniata Register, talks to us very familiarly, and says several (to him) very funny and sharp things about us, (the Senior) because, forsooth, we declined Uncle Samuel's invitation to his great Southern Ball. Our cotemporary says he always likes to see a man practice what he preaches. So do we, Amos. If you are in earnest in this matter, you should set us the example. You have been preaching opposition to the Government, the war, the conscription and loyalty generally, for a couple of years past, yet you have failed to practice your preaching by going down South and helping your friends, Davis, Floyd, Breckinridge, etc. You say to us:

"If you are so desirous of freeing the negroes why don't you shoulder a musket, step into the ranks, and assist the administration in accomplishing this object?"

We do not like the Yankee style of answering one question by asking another, yet it appears in place for us, just here, to inquire of our interrogator, since he has assumed to criticise our actions, why it is since he is so much afraid the negroes will be freed and his friends, Davis & Co., thereby loose their property, that he does not shoulder his musket, step into their ranks, and assist them in preventing the Union army from accomplishing this object and saving the Union? Why don't you do for your friends, Amos, what you would have us do for ours? We think we have done more for the Union than you have done for its enemies—not because you did not desire to do more for them, but because you lacked the ability. We claim the merit of being loyal to the government under which we live and which affords us protection; that although we have not shouldered a musket and gone into the field in its defence, we have willingly contributed of an amount which the Goverment agreed was equivalent to our services, and have exerted our influence, whatever it may be, in its favor. How has it been with you, Amos? An open advocate of slavery and a covert emisary of Jeff Davis aristocracy and monarchy, (too cowardly to go down into the dominions of your friend, Davis, lest he should compel you to volunteer in his army,) you have been crawling, snake-like, over this free soil, leaving behind you a slimy streak of base ingratitude to the free government (of which you are an alien) that tolorates your presence, permits you to breathe and pollute its pure air, affords you protection and patiently endures your stabs in the dark, because it scorns to tread the meanest worm. Whenever you go to the assistance of your friends, Amos, and thereby practice what you preach, you will find us in the Union ranks; but so long as you remain up here, so long will we remain to keep an eye on you and endeavor to counteract your pernicious influence.

Having noticed us so familiarly and kindly, Amos, you must not take it hard that we have replied in like manner, only more at length. Good bye.

☞ From the Army of the Potomac comes a very curious Rebel letter, found on the body of one of Lee's soldiers who was killed in a late engagement. It is from a father, living near Vicksburg, to his son in the Rebel army. Among other things it gives a lamentable picture of affairs in Mississippi and Louisiana, owing to the stampede of the slaves, the merciless execution of the Davis conscription law, the robberies by guerrillas, and the flight of rich traitors to Texas from their luxurious plantations along the Mississippi. In closing the writer says: "Our men are too much divided, and too many have gone back to the Union. This war was got up drunk, but they will have to settle it sober. There are a great many men in the South who are to be pitied." The day of settlement is not far off, and on its arrival the tearful account will be made up, and judgment will light on many a guilty head.

DELAWARE ELECTION.—The election in Delaware, on Thursday, to fill a vacancy in the Congressional delegation, resulted in the election of N. B. Smithers, Union. Brown, the opposition candidate, was withdrawn.

☞ We have received the following circular with the request that we publish and call attention to it. We willingly comply and hope that the clergy who hold services next Thursday will act upon the suggestions of the committee. More than the amount asked for could be collected in this manner, and it would be a substantial way of returning thanks to the men who have sacrificed so much for us.

U. S. CHRISTIAN COMMISSION.—The undersigned committee of the U. S. Christian Commission of the District of Maryland, are now greatly in need of funds for the supply of Hospital Stores, Clothing, Blankets, &c., to the sick and wounded soldiers and sailors of the Hospitals. A sum less than twenty thousand dollars will not be sufficient to meet the demands the approaching winter must produce.

By the contributions of kind friends, the Christian Commission has been enabled to afford relief to many thousands of the disabled soldiers of the battle fields and marines of the ships and gunboats of our naval service.

The committee respectfully and affectionately suggest to their brethern of the clergy, who may, by means of this circular, or in any way become informed of our needs, that they make collections in their churches on the day set apart by the President of the United States as a day of Thanksgiving and prayer to Almighty God for the protection and blessing He has vouchsafed to us as a nation, especially for the intervention of His Providence amid the perils of a fierce and sanguinary war. Such contributions as we solicit on behalf of the suffering soldiers and sailors of our army and navy will doubtless be accepted as a thank-offering to our great Father in Heaven. The service they may render to those who have risked their lives in the defence of our Government will be but a small return for the great sacrifices they have made on our account.

We trust our friends of the clergy of all denominations will respond favorably to this appeal.—Amounts collected will be thankfully received at the Room of the Christian Commission, 77 West Baltimore Street, Baltimore.

Halting at the landing—The memory of Cole and Irving haunting these mountains—Pedestrianating up the mountain—A moonlight rambler, &c.

CATSKILL MOUNTAIN HOUSE.

Our last left us halting at the Catskill landing, but our boat does not approach the dock, and while the alternate boat, the Armenia, is rasping the string pieces with her guards at will, the Drew must land her passengers in a little ferry boat, from which we are to be shoved into the midst of the Marine House on the pier, and the wilderness of Concord coaches, low wagons, and vehicles of every size, shape and description, bearing the talismanic name of Beach, and destined for the Mountain House. There is no hack or carriage swindlers however, and no unnecessary delay; an agent for the Mountain House shows the labeled brass band around his hat even on the ferry-boat, and in a marvelously short space of time, the Drew steams away up the Hudson towards Albany, and the Tom Powell comes lugging a couple of laden barges out of the Catskill Creek and takes her way downward towards the greateity we have left a hundred miles away.

The Blue Mountains seeming very much changed in their confirmation, the Mountain House disappearing except to those who know where to look for it. It is nearer than when seen from below, but the light is no longer relieved against the North Mountain, and it can now be seen by experienced eyes, standing on the north shoulder of the South Mountain, and its long square top only relieved against the western sky. Against such a sky, and with the sun in the west, is it not a prominent object. When the morning sun is shining fair upon the front, it stands fully revealed to the eye from this point as light and airy, and almost as unreal as the dome of cloud in Cole,s "Voyage of Life," towards which the hands and eyes of the young voyager are straining. By and by little "Blossom" we shall see more nearly the positive architectural beauty which makes this bright perspective passible.

And speaking of Cole, before Church, the landscape master of America,—it was here in this straggling and stony village of Catskill that he made his residence—here that he painted most of the pieces of the "Voyage of Life," the "Course of Empire," and the "Cross of the Crown"—up in the mountains yonder that he found many of the foliage and cloud effects which he afterwards so grandly reproduced—and in a little house not far from the main street, up which we shall rattle directly, I am informed his hand failed, and his life went out just as he was attempting to place the aureola around the head of the Invisible in the last picture of his sacred series. If there were no grand old mountains making the whole region sacred, it would yet be sacred with the memory of genius; and some day, when the Mountain House has been toppled down from its elevation, and the foot of the pleasure-seeker no longer clambers up the steeps in his summer wanderings, the feet of the tourist will yet be treading these stony roads, because Irving sanctified them with the memory of an imaginary Rip Van-Winkle, and Cole pondered over them, those combinations of cloud, shadow and color, which were to culminate in "Youth," the "Heigth of Empire," and the "Ruins Agrigentum." Methinks Titania, the Fairy Queen, may have her fairy realms in the midst of these beauties, and Puck, when he put his girdle round the earth, would have halted to take a peep, and to pluck a wild flower from these blooming gardens, rambling to waste.

"Sontag," little "Blossom" and "Sunshine," and all the rest of the passengers for the Mountain House are stowed away in a half-ton leather-lined coach, with a body swinging on leathern jacks, each drawn by four horses. Heavy sands are driving up with the southwester as we whirl away from Catskill village and over a road—the grating gravel creating a shuddering sensation, something like crunching a quart of pebble-stones between our teeth—mountainward. Occasionally a cap settles down on the "old man of the mountains," which the weatherwise believe to herald a coming storm. But Sontag has great confidence in the clear weather which just precedes the full of the moon, and he will not believe that nature, for the first time, intends to go into silent weeping because he has visited the Catskills. Up hill and down dale, with somewhat of rattling speed, we go, the mountains occasionally showing full before us, and then managing to hide away, gigantic as they are, as we dash down into a sweep of road—through a long wooded hollow. Residences appear, and then play bo-peep among the trees, and succeed in escaping a close scrutiny. Ranter's Rill Creek comes dancing along to the left, a mere brook with banks of dense verdure, and then without any one knowing when or how it was crossed, it performs similar salutatory feats on the right. Here we glance down into a deep ravine, once spanned by a bridge that has now fallen into decay—here we pass a schoolhouse that supplies education to a little scattered hamlet, half a dozen hats hanging in the vestibule, and the monotonous hum of recitation sounding even over the rumble of wheels, we pass a field of marvelously fine grapes, bending down in the sweetest acknowledgement of the goodness of Heaven, and straggling patches of grass with a little corn clinging to the hillsides, showing a marvelous amount of faith and patience in those who have sown them; past broken half acres of new ground, mingled with stumps and rocks, and the very places to have tried the christian patience of the man who attempted to plow them; past a little white church with a modest spire, the last towards the mountains, and all too seldom visited; rising now steadily and rapidly, and the mountains beginning to hang over with a very sense of oppressiveness. Here we are at the mountain toll-gate, with no view of the mountains whatever, and nothing to do except to climb, for so steep a road as this can scarcely be found even going up to Brookwild, White Mountains, or the Alleghenies. And here at the mountain toll-gate, as the fact becomes known, that traveller must be slow on foot, and short of wind, that cannot beat the coach up the mountain, and a general lightening of the vehicle takes place. A long gangling man in a white cravat and a duster reaching to his heels, (probably a clergyman,) springs out, and is followed by his companion, a shorter and stouter doctor, in spectacles. Sontag hears the Domine speak of being an old mountaineer and making the ascent of mount Rosa, and feels discouraged. However he jumps out and after leaving "Blossom" and "Sunshine" to lounge on the cushions and, perhaps, to be carried hopelessly off by the spirit companions of Hendrick Hudson.—The first two steps are a torture, and the first two dozen, at this steep ascent, makes the sweat burst out like beads, and the breath comes with the severest labor. Slow and sure, however, is the climbing of a mountain, quite as much so as in any other detail of life.

We reach the Rip Van-Winkle House—pausing occasionally to catch glimpses through the trees at the plain below, and to listen to the solemn silence of the great woods—sometime before the stage comes tumbering up, and then we partake of hard boiled eggs and soda-water. After this sumptuous repast we stow ourselves in the coach and rattle on to our destination. Soon we come out on a little cleared space of the road and fall into possession of two views worth remembering. The one is the whole valley of the Hudson, hedged, fenced, divided, and the broad blue river itself miles away and yet apparently lying at our feet; the other the Mountain House perched upon the verge of what seems to be a bold rock, something like Table Rock at Niagara, and hanging like an eagle's nest several hundred feet above the road. The last half hour is a tiresome one, but it closes at last; and when the last rise is surmounted, the horses break into a swinging trot on a plateau of flat rock and we are whirled through the wide rear court-yard, and dismounted at the west door of the Mountain House. There may be pleasant places hid away somewhere in an undiscovered nook of this Continent, but if so, we have failed to discover them in any of our peregrinations. The windows open out on the broad piazza, and almost before the outer wrappings of travel are thrown off, and quite before the dust of the ride is washed off, we step out upon the piazza and take a long look at the fine prospect that lies full before us.—Distance is said to lend enchantment to the view, and imagination often displays the same soothing quality, so that the landscape that was really rough and unconicly, is seen in golden colors through the minds eye. But nothing imaginary is found here. What a sweep of vision this is, forty or fifty miles down the valley, and the same distance up, with the Hudson lying like a broad blue ribbon at a dozen miles distance, and the Highlands beyond looming duskly through the coming mist of evening, and yet the whole valley bathed in a warm reflection of the light that seems to have settled down there like a sunny mist from the deserted mountain tops. It is a silly fancy, but we seem to have not a mere segment of a country, but the world, at our feet. Not only at the base of the mountains, but miles upon miles away, every tree and strip of shrubbery, every hedge and fence is distinctly visible. Here nestles a little hamlet of half a dozen houses, with the road sweeping through it, and seeming near enough for the tossing of a pebble into the square at the cross-roads. For miles in one direction a main road can be traced, and in another a little brook that cannot be too wide for an ordinary leap, can be seen through its entire length; here in a glint of light water, and there in a long line of shadow. The sunset light is on the river far beyond, with a sail occasionally dotting it, and a steamboat at long intervals, the very smoke and steam from her pipes visible through the glass. Certainly there is no such view from mountains over cultivated country on the American Continent, and the most enthusiastic of travellers have failed to point out its peer in the views caught from the peaks in Switzerland or Syria.

It is yet early when the flaky tea-biscuit and the other accompaniments of supper are discussed; and Sontag has an anxiety to see the Lake by moonlight, so he wends his way, accompanied by little "Blossom" and "Sunshine," down through the west court-yard, by a winding road that leads westward to that locality. The moon is yet low, and all is ghostly, hush and quiet, which makes the little hands tremble on the supporting arms, and more than one slight shiver, compounded of loneliness and nervousness, run through the pliant frames. Except one stage coming into the building as we go out, all is utter loneliness, and not a footfall except our own breaks the silence, as we descend into the tree girt road. The quiet grows absolutely solemn as we leave the Mountain House farther behind, and the moonlight falling brokenly through the branches, and touching doubtfully stumps and rock and many other indefinate objects by the side of the road. The dusk trees lifting their broken outlines skyward; the wild unmistakeably mountain appearance of the scenery caught beyond, combines to annihilate the time and space. "Sunshine" says "oh, how lonely!" and "Blossom" sings an ode to the pines of this solitude.

"Oh heard ye the pines in their solitude sigh," &c.

The echo of the last note of little "Blossom's" ode had scarcely died away, when again "Sunshine" ejaculated, "Oh! how very lonely!" and absolutely shuddering at the sound of her own voice. We go a few steps farther, and not more than half a mile from the Mountain House, and we turn sharply to the left beside a causeway spanning a little stream which we shall cross when going down to the falls to-morrow morning, and over a little flat of white sand with a belt of trees beyond, and stand on the shore of the Lake. It would be but a mere pond elsewhere, but here it is a lake, little, and yet dignified, here in the bosom of the eternal mountains fringed with dense woods and shimmering in the solemn moonlight. A little boat lies at the shore a few yards below; in all other respects it might have been unseen and unvisited since the creation. "Listen! what is that? says little "Blossom." That shrill scream which for a moment sends a tremor through the frame of both, and makes me shudder and startle. Only the scream of a young eagle, and why should not the eagle scream in agony to-day while gathering strength with which to tear its foes in the future. But this little sound has made the solitude and silence doubly oppressive and the low voice that says; "Its too lonely here! I cannot bear it, let us go home"—is answered willingly and almost without a word. Silently and slowly we tread the short lonely road back to the Mountain House, breathing almost a sigh of relief when we once more stand within the circle of the lights. Then follows the promenade on the piazza, that long piazza, not so long, or so broad as that of the United States at Saratoga, but far more graceful under the shadow of those heavy fluted columns. The piazza it not deserted, but the loungers are not too many for solitude or convenience.

The moon has risen higher, shaken itself clear of the mist that enshrouded its earlier rising and now rides high and cloudless, throwing all the eastern slope of the mountains into bright relief against the dark sky of the west and pouring a warm flood of light over the whole Hudson valley. All that we saw by the daylight is once more visible, almost every detail but dimmed and softened, and strange to say, seeming infinitely nearer than before, so that the eminence upon which we stand seems to be nothing more than a knoll, and the valley a country road, into which one could spring at a single leap. But we will not take that leap from the plateau of the South mountain. little "Blosson" and "Sunshine," we will but drink our fill of this glorious scene so wierdly beautiful, and then we will fall calmly away to our short night of rest preparatory to the fatigues and pleasures of to-morrow.

Yours, truly, AUG. SONTAG.

Gen. Jackson, Kentucky, killed.
Gen. Stevens, Washington Territory, killed.

THE $10,000 ROBBERY.—In our issue of Saturday morning, we briefly mentioned the fact that early on Friday night a thief had thrust his hand through the window of Samuel L. M'Cullock, broker, on Market street, snatched up $10,000, and made off with it successfully. We have since visited the premises, and learned some facts in relation to the affair. It appears that Mr. M'C. had received a payment of some $9,000 from an officer connected with the government. This money, which was in "greenbacks" of various denominations, he increased to the round sum of $10,000, and locked in a desk for safe keeping while he went to supper. Shortly after 9 o'clock he opened this desk for the purpose of arranging its contents, at the same time lifting out the package and laying it on the show window for the time being. About this time a gentleman entered and transacted some business with him, after which Mr. M'C. went into the back dart of the office and laid down upon a lounge to read. He lay in such a way that he had a full view of both the front window and the door, although about one half of the former was concealed from view by the desk above mentioned.

In a few minutes he was aroused by a crash of glass, and, recollecting the money, he instantly ran to the window. Retreating a few steps, he sprang quickly over the counter and ran out of the door, crying "stop thief" at the top of his voice. He looked up, across and down the street, but not a soul was in sight. Running across, he met Mr. Clark, an employee of the Lebanon Valley railroad, on the corner of Fifth and Market, who told him he had seen a man running along Fifth toward the depot. They made that way in all haste, but the bold fellow had made good his escape.

Mr. M'Cullock immediately telegraphed in all directions, offering a reward of $1,000 for the apprehension of the thief, but as he has not a single clue or suspicion whereby to identify him, it is doubtful if the money will ever be recovered. As the case stands, it is one of the boldest and most successful robberies on record, being made at an early hour and in the busiest part of town.

The loser in this instance seems to be peculiarly unfortunate, as he lost about $8,000 by the burning of his flouring mill on State street, about three years ago, and had a stave factory on the corner of Walnut and Short streets burned by an incendiary the year before, involving a loss of about $1,500.—Harrisburg Patriot and Union.

IMPERTINENCE PUNISHED.—A correspondent writes to the American Agriculturist from Wayne Co., N. Y.: "Near our village lives a young Miss just blooming into womanhood, who attracts much attention by her beauty. She is a merry hearted, but sensible girl, and apparently in nowise spoiled by the many compliments she receives. Recently she greatly enjoyed the discomfiture of a man who rather impertinently attempted to introduce himself. He had recently come from the City, and dressed in the hight of fashion, was riding with a companion when he caught sight of Miss L., who was drawing a kettle of water from a spring near the house. He exclaimed, "what a charming creature! I must make an acquaintance, and forthwith he stepped from his carriage, and with a very stylish bow, requested "the privilege of drinking water drawn by such fair hands." She started to bring a tumbler but he insisted on drinking from the kettle, and raised it to his lips. Just then a mischevious pet sheep belonging to Miss L.—came frisking around the corner behind the stranger, and without any warning, with a powerful butt sent him sprawling head-foremost into the spring, kettle and all! He was not injured, but the starch was thoroughly taken out of him, as well as from his shirt bosom, and he lost no time in scrambling back to his carriage and hurrying away from the sound of Miss L's. laughter

A GOOD MOVE.—The different counties of Indiana are outvying each other in endeavoring to make soldiers families comfortably and helping on the Sanitary Commission. A soldiers' supper at Lafayette the other night, netted $330; Carroll county has given $235 in cash and 400 wagon louds of provision; one gentleman in Richmond has given $1,000, and these are only examples of what is going on all over the State.

RETIRED.—Brigadier General Robert Anderson, the hero of Sumter, has been placed upon the retiring list by the President of the United States, upon the recommendation of the Retiring Board. The retirement of Gen. Anderson is understood to be in entire concurrence with his wishes, as the health of the great soldier has long been such as to necessitate his seeking a condition of permanent repose.

THE SINGER SEWING MACHINES.

OUR LETTER A FAMILY SEWING MACHINE is fast gaining a world-wide reputation. It is beyond doubt the best and cheapest and most beautiful of all Family Sewing Machines yet offered to the public. No other Family Sewing Machine has so many useful appliances for Hemming, Binding, Felling, Tucking, Gathering, Guaging, Braiding, Embroidering, Cording, and so forth. No other Family Sewing Machine has so much capacity for a great variety of work. It will sew all kinds of cloth, and with all kinds of thread. Great and recent improvements make our Family Sewing Machine most reliable, and most durable, and most certain in action at all rates of speed. It makes the interlocked stitch which is the best stitch known. Any one, even of the most ordinary capacity, can see at a glance, how to use the letter A Family Sewing Machine. Our Family Sewing Machines are finished in chaste and exquisite style.

The folding Case of the Family Machine is a piece of cunning workmanship of the most useful kind. It protects the machine when not in use, and when about to be operated may be opened as a spacious and substantial table to sustain the work. While some of the Cases, made out of the choicest woods, are finished in the simplest and chastest manner possible, others are adorned and embellished in the most costly and superb manner.

It is absolutely necessary to see the Family Machine in operation, so as to judge of its great capacity and beauty.

It is fast becoming as popular for family sewing as our Manufacturing machines are for manufacturing purposes.

The Branch Officers are well supplied with silk, twits, thread, needles, oil, &c., of the very best quality.

☞ SHAKE AND BURN! Shake and Burn! Shake and Burn!!!

This is the life of agony endured by the sufferer from Fever and Ague. He wanders like an uncertain shadow, never knowing at what moment he may be prostrated, and therefore disinclined to give any serious attention to business. This is the condition of thousands in town and country. It is no exaggeration to say that Fever and Ague kills more than any other twenty diseases in America. For a sure and speedy cure of this terrible affliction, we take great pleasure in recommending HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS, which have already achieved a wide reputation for rapid and power effects in renovating the system prostrated by this disease.

For sale by Druggists and dealers generally, everywhere. 1m.

A CARD TO THE SUFFERING.

The Rev. Wm. Cosgrove, while laboring as a Missionary in Japan, was cured of Consumption, when all other means had failed, by a recipe obtained from a learned physician in the great city of Jeddo. This recipe has cured great numbers who were suffering from Consumption, Bronchitis, Sore Throat, Coughs and Colds, and the debility and nervous depression caused by these disorders.

Desirous of benefiting others, I will send this recipe, which I have brought home with me, to all who need it, free of charge. Address,

DR. TOBIAS' VENNETIA LINIMENT.

Has given universal satisfaction during the fourteen years it has been introduced into the United States. After being tried by millions, it has been proclaimed the pain destroyer of the world. Pain cannot be where this liniment is applied. If used as directed it cannot and never has failed in a single instance. For colds, coughs and influenza, it can be beat. One 25 cent bottle will cure all the above, besides being useful in every family for sudden accidents, such as burns, cuts, scalds, insect stings, &c. It is perfectly innocent to take internally, and can be given to the oldest person or youngest child. Price 25 and 50 cents a bottle. Office 56 Cortlandt street, New York.—For sale by G. W. Kessler, Altoona.

CAUTION.

We have this day obtained a Patent for our Manufactures, known as "FAMILY DYE COLORS."

The Dyes manufactured by other persons, under the name of "Domestic Dyes," &c., are made in violation of our Patent.

We caution all persons making or selling the same hereafter, that we shall prosecute for all infringement of our rights.

HOSTETTER'S
CELEBRATED
STOMACH BITTERS.

A pure and powerful Tonic, corrective and alterative, of wonderful efficacy in disease of the STOMACH, LIVER AND BOWELS.

Cures Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Headache, General Debility, Nervousness, Depression of Spirits, Constipation, Colic, Intermittent Fevers, Cramps and Spasms, and all Complaints of either Sex, arising from Bodily Weakness, whether inherent in the system or produced by special causes.

NOTHING that is not wholesome, genial and restorative in its nature enters into the composition of HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS. This popular preparation contains no mineral of any kind; no deadly botanical element; no fiery excitant; but it is a combination of the extracts of rare balsamic herbs and plants with the purest and mildest of all diffusive stimulants.

It is well to be forearmed against disease, and, so far as the human system can be protected by human means against maladies engendered by an unwholesome atmosphere, impure water and other external causes, HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS may be relied on as a safeguard.

In districts infected with Fever and Ague, it has been found infallible as a preventive and irresistible as a remedy, and thousands who resort to it under apprehension of an attack, escape the scourge; and thousands who neglect to avail themselves of its protective qualities in advance, are cured by a very brief course of this marvelous medicine. Fever and Ague patients, after being plied with quinine for months in vain, until fairly saturated with that dangerous alkaloid, are not unfrequently restored to health within a few days by the use of HOSTETTER'S BITTERS.

The weak stomach is rapidly invigorated and the appetite restored by this agreeable Tonic, and hence it works wonders in cases of DYSPEPSIA and in less confirmed forms of INDIGESTION. Acting as a gentle and painless aperient, as well as upon the liver, it also invariably relieves the CONSTIPATION superinduced by irregular action of the digestive and secretive organs.

Persons of feeble habit, liable to Nervous Attacks, Lowness of Spirits and Fits of Languor, find prompt and permanent relief from the Bitters. The testimony on this point is most conclusive, and from both sexes.

The agony of BILLIOUS COLIC is immediately assuaged by a single dose of the stimulant, and by occasionally resorting to it, the return of the complaint may be prevented.

As a General Tonic, HOSTETTER'S BITTERS produce effects which must be experienced or witnessed before they can be fully appreciated. In cases of Constitutional Weakness, Premature Decay and Debility and Decrepitude arising from OLD AGE, it exercises the electric influence. In the convalescent stages of all diseases it operates as a delightful invigorant. When the powers of nature are relaxed, it operates to re-enforce and reestablish it.

Last, but not least, it is The only Safe Stimulant, being manufactured from sound and innocuous materials, and entirely free from the acid elements present more or less in all the ordinary tonics and stomachics of the day.

No family medicine has been so universally, and, it may be truly added, deservedly popular with the intelligent portion of the community as HOSTETTER'S BITTERS.

LOCAL ITEMS.

ROBBERY.—On Sunday night last, the merchant tailoring establishment of Thomas Elway, in Brant's Row, was entered through one of the front windows and a considerable quantity of made up clothing and several pieces of cloth and vestings carried off. On the discovery of the robbery, on Monday morning, there was no clue to the perpetrators, but during the day a chisel bearing the stamp of the Penn'a R. R. Co. was found on the street in front of the store. On comparing it with the marks on the window shutter it was found to be the article used in forcing it. The chisel had evidently been taken from the tool box of a car, standing on the siding, which was broken open the same night. Suspicion then fell upon a couple of unknown darkies who were seen loitering around the railroad all day on Sunday, but who were among the missing on Monday morning. No light was thrown on the subject until Tuesday morning, when Mr. Elway received a telegram from Samuel D. Young, Supt. Middle Division, P. R. R., at Harrisburg, informing him that a portion of his goods were at the "McClellan House," in that city. Mr. E. left for Harrisburg on the first train, and was pleased to find that the most of his stock had been recovered, but the thieves had escaped, almost at the risk of their lives, as the sequel will show.

Suspicion had rightly fallen upon the darkies above referred to. It is supposed that after they had secured the goods they placed them in a stable, (as there were hay seeds on them) either here or at Spruce Creek, and waited until the freight trains were passing down on Monday night, when they selected a box car loaded with coal, the doors of which were open, into which they stowed their booty, and then took passage themselves. A brakeman on the train discovered the passengers and, while the trains stopped at Marysville, informed Wm. Marshal, conductor of another train running on same schedule, of the fact. Mr. M. satisfied himself that the passengers were the suspected darkies, and immediately closed the doors of the car, intending to keep them in it until the train arrived at Harrisburg. Unfortunately, the car was one that had been used for transporting soldiers, in which a number of holes had been cut, which had been insecurely closed. At these the darkies went, and soon succeeded in knocking out the strips with which one of the holes had been closed, and before the train had got under full headway they jumped out and skeedaddled for life. One of them fell out and was seen by the brakeman to roll down over the embankment into a ditch of water. When the car was opened, at Harrisburg, all the cloth and a number of pieces of clothing were found in it. Each darkey had put on two cassimer shirts and about two suits of clothes, and left the balance. The police of Harrisburg were supplied with samples of the missing clothing and it is to be hoped that they will succeed in "pulling" the scamps.

This is the second time Mr. Elway has been robbed. There is a german now serving out a term in the Western Penitentiary for performing a similar operation some two years since.

Mr. E's loss in this instance foots up about $82,00.

An attempt was made, on the same night, to enter the boot and shoe store of Mr. John Shoemaker, but the window shutters were too strong and too securley fastened.

MAN KILLED.—On Monday afternoon last, a german named John Wicker, a laborer on the track train on the Mountain Division, was thrown from a truck, near Kittanning Point, and fell upon the track in such a position that the train passed over his left arm and leg, breaking and injuring both to such an extent that amputation was rendered necessary. This was performed by Drs. Chrisfy and Gemmill, at the Exchange Hotel, to which place he was taken. But medical skill was of no avail in his case, and on Tuesday evening death put an end to his sufferings. He leaves a wife and two children, who live some place on Mill Run, above town.

CELLAR THIEVES.—It appears that some of these gentry are again in town, looking up eatables and fishing for a load of shot or a lodging in the stone house in the town over-the-hill. We hear of several slight depredations committed in different parts of the town. Among others, they visited the cellar and kitchen of the Logan House and carried away various eatables and a pair of boots belonging to Mr. D. Miller. Taking these initiatory steps as a warning, it would be well for our citizens to look to their door and window fastenings, and, lest these should fail, it would not come amiss to have a well loaded revolver or shot gun close at hand.

ANNUAL CONFERENCE.—By announcement in the Christian Advocate and Journal, we learn the Annual Meeting of East Baltimore Conference, Methodist Episcopal Church, will convene in this place on the 2d of March next, and be presided over by Bishop Janes. As the coming session will be one of peculiar interest, inasmuch as the General Conference meets in Philadelphia, in May next, and delegates are to be elected thereto, we intend publishing a daily Record of the proceedings and will issue a prospectus for subscribers to the same, in the course of a few days.

THIEVES "PULLED."—Constable Ely has been doing a thriving business, during the past week, in the way of arresting thieves who were endeavoring to escape on the trains. On Saturday morning last, he received a telegram from Huntingdon, requesting him to arrest a small fancy looking Italian, on a charge of entering the rooms of a couple of Hotels in that place, in one instance abstracting some $16 from the pockets of a boarder, and in another appropriating a gold watch and some money belonging to a traveller.—On the arrival of the Express Train, Joe "spotted" the "larkey" and "pulled" him forthwith.—Great were his protestations against such treatment towards a man who had only been twelve days in this country; but Joe was deaf to entreaty, and insisted upon furnishing the stranger with lodgings in the "Lockup," until constable King should arrive and take charge of him. Constable K. arrived in the evening train and furnished the foreign gentleman with a free ticket to Huntingdon, and provided him with lodging in the stone house with diamond windows.

On Monday last, Joe received a telegram from Pittsburgh, giving the description of a boy, about 19 years of age, named Benjamin Gough, who had stolen some $45 from his mother and taken passage on the Express Train Eastward, and requesting that he arrest him. From the description given, Joe had no difficulty in "spotting" his game, and as soon as the cars stopped he observed him upon the platform and at once laid his "fetche cum takum" upon him and offered to provide lodging in the "Lockup" for the night.—The boy was rather taken aback by the suddenness of the proceeding and denied all complicity in the larceny. Finding that he was fairly caught, and that there was no getting out of the scrape, he "simmered down," and admitted little by little until he admitted all. His mother came on, on Tuesday, and took charge of him and conveyed him back to Pittsburgh.

AWFUL CATASTROPHE.—On Wednesday morning last, one of the most terrible and fatal accidents that was ever witnessed on the Penn'a Rail Road, occurred to the Stock Express Train Eastward, while standing at Conemaugh Station. To the rear of each stock train is attached what is called a callaboose car, for the accommodation of drovers and those in charge of the stock. In addition to the Engine in front, the train was being pushed up the grade by Engine No. 174.—While the train was stopping at the station named, to allow this Engine to take in coal and water, it blew up. The fire-box was blown off and the boiler was raised up and thrown on top of the callaboose car, in which were a number of drovers and their helps. The result was that

John Finley, engineer, was so badly injured that he died on Tuesday morning

Chas. Donahoe, fireman, was thrown a considerable distance from the engine, receiving a severe shock and a number of bruises, but it is thought he will recover

James Mills, flagman, who was standing on the rear bumper of the callaboose car, had his arm broken, head cut and was otherwise bruised and also badly scalded. From the latter his life is endangered.

Nathan Rosenvaux, a Jew pedler, hailing from No. 70 Mott Street, New York City, who was a passenger in the callaboose car, had his right arm torn off just below the shoulder and was badly scalded. He died on Tuesday morning.

John Hodge, of Kentucky, employed by one of the drovers, was instantly killed, as was also another man who was unknown to any person on the train. There were no papers or marks about him whereby to discover who he was, or where he was from.

We are indebted to Dr. J. M. Gemmill, who was dispatced by the Company to attend the injured men, for the above particulars.

☞ The women around Philadelphia go to the corn fields and offer to husk corn for the husks, and as labores are scarce, the farmers gladly accept the proposition. The women carry the husks to the city, dry and strip them, and then sell them to the manufacturers of mattresses. It is sad that the mattresses made of corn husks are of the most healthy kind, and some persons allege they have been cured of rheumatism by sleeping on husk matresses. An experience of eight years has convinced us that a husk mattress makes the most comfortable, and, be believe, the most healthy bed upon which to sleep.

"SKEEDADDLED."—Our senior devil has "skeedaddled," "vamoosed our ranche," "cut stick," "packed kit," and started out to "paddle, his own canoe" through the world, by opening a confectionery store and oyster saloon in the room formerly occupied by Jacob Holtzman, in Brant's Row. He has on hand sundry good things, and among others sweet cider, with which he wet the printers' whistles a day or two since. The transmogrification from a printer's devil to the proprietorship of such an establishment is great, but Sam can bear it. May he never have occasion to regret forsaking a little hard work to make a living standing behind a counter.

☞ Hodnot's building, opposite the Superintendent's office, is now under roof. It is a fine building and a great improvement to this part of the town. The Penn'a R. R. Co's building, on the corner of Annie and Emma streets is almost finished and gives a city touch to that side of the street. A brick pavement is being put down in front of all the Company property. We hope that all our citizens who are able will follow the example of the Company and put down brick pavements, thereby doing away with the numerous mantraps in the way of broken board-walks.

PERSONAL.—We were pleased to receive a visit from Dr. D. R. Good, formerly of this place, late Surgeon in the U. S. Army, who was spending a few days with his friends in this place, this week. He has just returned from Gettysburg, where he was attending the wounded since the battle at that place, in July last. Although his duties were arduous, leaving but little time for rest, he still looks hearty. The Doctor enjoys the reputation of being an excellent surgeon, and always wins the praise of those placed under his care.

GRAND CONCERT.—A grand concert will be given in Logan Hall, on Thursday evening next, Nov. 26th, (Thanksgiving evening) by the German Choir, under the direction of Charles Hanschey. It will be a pleasant entertainment, consisting of choice duetts on the piano and on violin and piano, also songs, quartetts and trios. For particulars see programme. Doors open at 6½, concert to commence at 7½ o'clock.

A. M. L. & R. R. A.—Special Meeting of the Board of Directors of Altoona Mechanics' Library & Reading Room Association held Nov. 9th, 1863.

Vice President John Riley in the chair. Members present. Messrs. Riley, Reibenack, Kessler, Keller, Adlum, Irons and Elder.

Minutes of last meeting read and approved. The President read a letter to the Board from the Editor of Evening Bulletin reducing his bill to $900. On motion it was ordered to be paid.

The Committee on Outstanding Dues reported progress.

The following persons were elected members of the Association, viz: Miss C. D. Abel, J. T. Woods, Wm. Powers, C. Huston, E. Elder, H. W. Gwinner and J. D. Hicks.

On motion $20,00 were appropriated for the purchasing of new books.

Mr. J. T. Moore through his friend Mr. J. G. Adlum, presented some ancient legal documents found in Virginia, which, on motion, were accepted and a vote of thanks tendered him for these valuable relics.

On motion adjourned,

E. ELDER, Rec. Sec'y.

BIBLICAL ENIGMA.—A friend has handed us the following Enigma to be solved by the Sunday School Scholars who read the Tribune. Answer requested.

I AM COMPOSED OF 7 LETTETS.

My first is the first letter of Zebedee's wife's name.

My second is the first letter of the name of the Governor of Samaria under Darius.

My third is the first letter of the name of one of the seventy that were appointed to aid Moses in governing the people of Israel.

My fourth is the first letter of the name of a distinguised Apostle of the gentiles.

My fifth is the first letter of the name of an Egyptian handmaid in the house of Abraham.

My sixth is the first letter of the name of a station of the Israelites on their way to Mount Sinai.

My seventh is the first letter of the name of a grandson of Ham.

My whole is the name of one of the seven Deacons first choses by the church of Jerusalem.

☞ Many farmers through the county may desire to butcher their own stock—that is the stock they have raised or fatened on their farms—and in that way dispose of it. To all such we would say, keep an account of the number killed, and the dates between which you kill and sell, in such a way as that you can be qualified that your account is correct, and after you have all slaughtered and sold, make your return to the Assistant Assessor of your district, under oath. It is almost impossible for Assistant Assessors to go through their respective districts and get Monthly Returns from all farmers who may kill and sell cattle, hogs or sheep, which they have raised themselves, but who do not make a business of slaughtering. Such persons do not need a license, unless they sell $1,000 worth. But they are bound to pay 20 cents per head for cattle over 18 months old, 5 cents for all under 18 months, 6 cents for each hog and 3 cents for each sheep they kill for sale.

LOOK OUT.—Ten dollar green backs, altered from one's are in circulation in this neighborhood, and may deceive those who are not posted on the appearance of those notes. One dollar green backs have the likeness of Secretary Chase on the upper left hand corner, while the $10's have the likeness of Lincoln on the same corner. The alteration is made by pasting an X over the figure 1, where it occurs in large type, and by blotting out the small figures and words with green ink. There are other means of detecting the alterations, but the quickest and surest way is to examine the likeness on the upper left hand corner. Secretary Chase appears on the $1's and President Lincoln on the 10's.

NEGRO SOLDIER'S.—On Sunday afternoon last, the fifth Ohio colored regiment, numbering 770 men, passed through this place, on their way, as they said, "to Massa Butler, in Norf Carlina."—They have been in camp and drilling since June last, and their officers were willing to wager any amount that they were as proficient in military tactics as any regiment in the field. All the commissioned officers were white, and were fine looking men. The darkies were fine specimens of their race, and looked as though they could give an equal number of Rebs a good drubbing on an open field.

ANOTHER INVOICE.—R. A. O. Kerr is determined to keep up with the times and supply the wants of the community from the gravest to the gayest. He has just received a large invoice of all styles of ladies dress goods, adapted to the winter season, together with the latest styles of shawls, cloaks, hoop skirts, shoes, gaiters etc., Also a large stock of goods for men's wear, together with groceries, selected with care as to quality and price. We might mention many other articles, but will merely say, call and examine the stock and you will be sure to find something to please you.

MALICIOUS MISCHIEF.—About 11 o'clock, on Thursday night last, some malicious person threw a stone through the large oval light of glass, over D. Laughman's clothing store door, shattering the light and completely destroying it, inasmuch as it was lettered with his name and the word "clothing," burned in the glass. We are informed by Mr. L. that the light and lettering cost him $11. What could have been the incentive so such a cowardly act we are at a loss to conceive. We hope the villian may be discovered and receive proper punishment.

☞ The Independent Phœnix, of Phœnixville, in speaking of the proficiency of an artist in that place, says:—"Last week he took a lady from Charleston, on horseback, and was a complete success," We make no pretensions to the artistic in the profile line, but we once took a lady out sleighing and accidently, or some other way, upset her in a snow bank. The success was complete, both as to the upset and the impression on the snow pile.

WHY IS IT?—Corn cannot be purchased in this vicinity for less than from 87½ cents to $1,00 per bushel, and farmers are not willing to sell even at these figures, but ask $1,25, while 100 miles nearer the city markets it is selling at from 65 to 75 cents per bushel. Give us an explanation.

☞ The Ladies' Fair, in St. John's Church, is still open nightly and always crowded. It is one of the most successful affairs of the kind that has yet been held in this place. It will be continued for some time to come.

DISTRESSING ACCIDENT.—A young man named Morrison McCartney, a resident of Logan township, who was, for some time past, employed as a brakeman on a freight train on the Northern Central Railway, between Harrisburg and Baltimore, came to his death suddenly, a few days since, in a manner unknown. He was found dead on the bumper of a car on the train on which he was employed, with a severe contusion on his head. It is supposed that he was standing on the top of a car and was struck by a bridge which knocked him down, and that he fell in the position in which he was found.

THANKSGIVING.—Thursday next is Thanksgiving Day. In addition to the President's Proclamation, the Governors of all the loyal States have issued Proclamations requesting that the day be observed. We presume announcements will be made from the pulpits in this place, on Sabbath next, for Divine service on that day. As usual, numberless turkeys will give up the gost the previous evening. We have not seen the gobler that is to make the printer's dinner.

ACCIDENT.—We learn from the Hollidaysburg papers, that Col. John Piper, of that town, Assistant Provost Marshal, of this county, met with a serious accident on Monday of last week.—While driving in his sulkey, one of the wheels came off and he was thrown out with such force as to dislocate one of his shoulders, besides sustaining other injuries. He is now mending rapidly.

☞ Look out for Counterfeits! not only of bank bills, but of every thing truly valuable. We understand that even the indispensable articles known as "Family Dye Colors" are no exception to this rule. The imitations, like all counterfeits, are utterly worthless. Remember that Howe & Stevens, Family Dye Colors are the original, the only valuable and useful thing of the kind.

NOTICE.—Foreign notes will not be received at the office of the Altoona Gas and Water Company in payment for gas or water bills, inasmuch as the bank in this place will not receive them on deposit

INFALLIBLE

THE

GREAT REMEDY

FOR RHEUMATISM, GOUT, NEURALGIA LUMBAGO, STIFF NECK AND JOINTS, SPRAINS, BRUISES, CUTS AND WOUNDS, PILES, HEADACHE, AND ALL RHEUMATIC AND NERVOUS DISORDERS.

For all of which it is a speedy and certain remedy, and never fails. This Liniment is prepared from the recipe of Dr. Stephen Sweet, of Connecticut, the famous bone setter, and has been used in his practice for more than twenty years with the most astonishing success.

AS AN ALLEVIATOR OF PAIN, it is unrivalled by any preparation before the public, of which the most skeptical may be convinced by a single trial.

This Liniment will cure rapidly and radically, RHEUMATIC DISORDERS of every kind, and in thousands of cases where it has been used it has never been known to fail.

FOR NEURALGIA, it will afford immediate relief in every case, however distressing.

It will relieve the worst cases of HEADACHE in three minutes and is warranted to do it.

TOOTHACHE also will it cure instantly.

FOR NERVOUS DEBILITY AND GENERAL LASSITUDE arising from imprudence or excess, this Liniment is a most happy and unfailing remedy. Acting directly upon the nervous tissues, it strengthens and revivifies the system, and restores it to elasticity and vigor.

FOR PILES.—As an external remedy, we claim that it is the best known, and we challenge the world to produce as equal. Every victim of this distressing complaint should give it a trial, for it will not fail to afford immediato relief, and in majority of cases will effect a radical cure.

QUINSY AND SORE THROAT are sometimes extremely malignant and dangerous, but a timely application of this Liniment will never fail to cure.

SPRAINS are sometimes very obstinate, and enlargement of the joints is liable to occur if neglected. The worst case may be conquered by this Liniment in two or three days.

BRUISES, CUTS, WOUNDS, SORES, ULCERS, BURNS AND SCALDS, yield readily to the wonderful healing properties of DR. SWEET'S INFALLIBLE LINIMENT, when used according to directions. Also, CHILBLAINS, FROSTED FEET, AND INSECT BITES AND STINGS.

A FRIEND IN NEED. TRY IT.

DR. SWEET'S INFALLIBLE LINIMENT, as an external remedy, is without a rival, and will alleviate pain more speedily than any other preparation. For all Rheumatic and Nervous Disorders it is truly infallible, and as a curative for Sores, Wounds, Sprains, Bruises, &c., its soothing, healing and powerful strengthening properties, excite the just wonder and astonishment of all who have ever given it a trial. Over one thousand certificates of remarkable cures, performed by it within the last two years, attest the fact.

TO HORSE OWNERS!

DR. SWEET'S INFALLIBLE LINIMENT FOR HORSES is unrivalled by any, and in all cases of Lameness, arising from Sprains, Bruises or wrenching, its effect is magical and certain. Harness or saddle Galls, Scratches, Mange, &c., it will also cure speedily. Spavin and Ringbone may be easily prevented and cured in their incipient stages, but confirmed cases are beyond the possibility of a radical cure. No case of the kind, however, is so desperate or hopeless but it may be alleviated by this Liniment, and its faithful application will always remove the lameness, and enable the horses to travel with comparative ease.

EVERY HORSE OWNER

should have this remedy at hand, for its timely use at the first appearance of Lameness will effectually prevent those formidable diseases, to which all horses are liable, and which render so many otherwise valuable horses nearly worthless.

DR. SWEET'S

INFALLIBLE LINIMENT

IS THE

Soldier's Friend,

And thousands have found it truly

THE Early Physical Degeneracy of AMERICAN PEOPLE.

JUST PUBLISHED BY DR. A. STONE

Physician to the Troy Lung and Hygienic Institute.

A Treatise on the Causes of Early Physical decline of American People; the cause of Nervous Debility, Consumption and Marasmus.

This work is one of high moral tone, written in chaste, yet thrilling language, and appeals directly to the moral consciousness of ALL PARENTS and Guardians especially, detailing scientific and reliable aids and treatment for cure.

It will be sent by mail on the receipt of two (3 cent) Stamps.

☞ Parents and Guardians! Fail not to send and obtain this book.

☞ Young men! Fail not to send and get this book.

☞ Ladies! You too should at once secure a copy of this book.

A Word of Solemn Conscientious Advice to those who will reflect.

A class of maladies prevail to a fearful extent in the community, dooming at least 100,000 youth of both sexes annually to an early grave. Those diseases are very imperfectly understood. Their external manifestation, or symptoms are Nervous Debility, Relaxation and Exhaustion; Marasmus or wasting and consumption of the tissues of the whole body; shortness of breathing or hurried breathing on ascending a hill or flight of stairs; great palpitation of the Heart; Asthma, Bronchitis and sore Throat; shaking of the Hands and Limbs; aversion to society and to business or study; dimness of eye sight, loss of Memory, dizziness of the Head, Neuralgia, Pain in various parts of the body; Pains in the back or limbs, Lumbago, Dyspepsia or Indigestion, irregularity of the bowels, deranged secretions of the Kidneys and other glands of the body, as Leucorrhœa or Fleur Albus, &c, Likewise Epilepsy, Hysteria and Nervous Spasms.

Now in ninety-nine cases out of every one hundred, all of the above named disorders, and a host of others not named, as Consumption of the Lungs and that most insidious and wily form of consumption of the Spinal Nerves, known as Tabes Dorsalos, and Tabes mesenterica, have their seat and origin in diseases of the Pelvic Viscera. Hence the want of success on the part of old school practice in treating symptoms only.

Dr. Andrew Stone, Physician to the Troy Lung and Hygienic Institution, is now engaged in treating this class of modern maladies with the most astonishing success. The treatment adopted by the Institution is new; it is based upon scientific principles, with new discovered remedies without minerals or poisons. The facilities of cure are such that patients can be cured at their homes, in any part of the country, from accurate descriptions of their case, by letter; and have the medicines sent by Mail or express. Printed interrogatories will be forwarded on application.

☞ Consumption, Catarrh and diseases of the throat cured as well at the Home of the Patients as at the Institution, by sending the Cold Medicated INHALING BALSAMIC VAPORS, with inhaler and ample directions for their use, and direct correspondence.

☞ Patients applying for interrogatives or advice, must enclose return stamps, to meet attention.

☞ The attending Physician will be found at the Institution for consultation, from 9 a. m. to 9 p. m., each day. Sunday in the forenoon.

GREAT PILES OF PANTALOONS for Men and Boys, at LAUGHMAN'S

HARDWARE.

The subscriber having taken entire charge of the Hardware and Stove and Tin Shop recently under the charge of Fries & Winters, on Virginia street, opposite Kessler's Drug Store, and having added largely to his stock is now prepared to supply anything in the Hardware and Cutlery line, such as Handsaws, Axes, Augers, Adzes, Chisels, Squares, Rules, Hammers, Planes, Hinges, Locks, Latches, Files, Knives and Forks, Spoons, &c., &c., all of which he offers on the most reasonable terms.

Persons wishing anything in the Hardware line are requested to call and examine his stock.

He has also added Oils, Paints, Carbon Oil, etc., to his stock, and will dispose of all these articles at a small advance on first cost.

He will also continue the

STOVE BUSINESS,

and will keep on hand an assortment from which any person will be able to select an article to please their fancy.

In the line of

TIN AND SHEET IRONWARE,

EDAR and WILLOW-WARE,

he will always have a large supply, and will make to order anything that may be called for.

GREAT DISCOVERY!

KUNKEL'

BITTER WINE OF IRON,

WEAK STOMACHS, GENERAL DEBILITY, INDIGESTION, DISEASES OF THE NERVOUS SYSTEM, CONSTIPATION, ACIDITY OF THE STOMACH, AND FOR ALL CASES REQUIRING A TONIC.

This wine includes the most agreeable and efficient Salt of Iron we possess: Citrate of Magnetic Oxide combined with the most energetic of Vegetable tonics, Yellow Peruvian Bark. The effect in many cases of Debility, Loss of Appetite and general prostration, of an efficient Salt of Iron, is most happy. It augments the appetite, raises the pulse, takes off muscular flabbiness, removes the palor of debility, and gives a florid vigor to the countenance.

Do you want something to strengthen you?
Do you want a good appetite?
Do you want to build up your constitution?
Do you want to feel well?
Do you want to get rid of nervousness?
Do you want energy?
Do you want to sleep well?
Do you want a brisk and vigorous feeling?
If you do, try

KUNKEL'S BITTER WINE OF IRON.

This truly valuable Tonic has been so thoroughly tested by all classes of the community, that it is now deemed indispensable as a Tonic medicine. It costs but little, purifies the blood, gives tone to the stomach, renovates the system, and prolongs life. I now only ask a trial of this valuable Tonic.

COUNTERFEITS.

BEWARE OF COUNTERFEITS.—As KUNKEL'S BITTER WINE OF IRON is the only sure and effectual remedy in the known world for the permanent cure of Dyspepsia and Debility, and as there are a number of imitations offered to the public, we would caution the community to purchase none but the genuine article, manufactured by S. A. KUNKEL, and which has his stamp on the top of the cork of every bottle. The very fact that others are attempting to imitate this valuable remedy, proves its worth and speaks volumes in its favor.

THE BITTER WINE OF IRON is put up in 75 cent and $1.00 bottles, and sold by all respectable Druggists throughout the country. Be particular that every bottle bears the fac simile of the proprietor's signature.

EMPORIUM OF FASHION!!

Virginia St., Altoona, Pa.

D. W. A. BELFORD, Proprietor.

THE PROPRIETOR OF THE "EMPORIUM OF FASHION" would respectfully announce to the public that he has received a large invoice of

CLOTHS, CASSIMERES, VESTINGS,

and a general assortment of

GENTS' FURNISHING GOODS,

Collars, Neck-Ties, Suspenders, Hosiery, Handkerchiefs, &c., &c., &c., exactly suited to this locality and intended for the

AUTUMN AND WINTER TRADE.

The proprietor of the Emporium invites an examination of his stock, feeling confident that his shelves present a greater variety of plain and fancy goods than can be found elsewhere in the country. An examination will convince any one of this fact.

He has also received the

LATEST FASHION,

and being a perfect "Cutter," he has no hesitancy in saying that he can make up clothing in the fashion, and in a manner that can not fail to prove satisfactory. It has passed into a proverb that

Belford's the very man that can make,
Clothes in the fashion, strong and cheap;
All that have ever tried him yet,
Say that he really cant be beat.

"A child can readily wring out a tubfull of clothes in a few minutes. It is in reality a CLOTHES SAVER! A TIME SAVER! and a STRENGTH SAVER! The saving of garments will alone pay a large per centage on its cost. We think the machine much more than PAYS FOR ITSELF EVERY YEAR in the saving of garments. There are several kinds, nearly alike in general construction, but we consider it important that the Wringer be fitted with Cogs, otherwise a mass of garments may clog the rollers, and the rollers open the crank-shaft slip and tear the clothes, or the rubber break loose from the shaft. Our own is one of the first make, and it is as GOOD AS NEW after nearly FOUR YEARS CONSTANT USE."

The Hero of One Hundred Fits per Month!

I would respectfully set forth my claim to public attention, as a Fashionable Tailor, as follows:

Because I keep an excellent assortment of Cloths, Cassimeres, Vestings and Trimmings, which, when examined always please.

Because my work is made up in a manner that takes down to the country and gives all my customers a city appearance.

Because I am not inferior as a Cutter to the best to be found anywhere.

Because long experience in my business gives me entire control over it, and I am not dependant upon any one to fit me out of the suds.

Because I am still on the sunny side of forty, and therefore my taste as a Cutter and workman unimpaired.

Every person desiring to obtain the very best and cheapest portable light within their reach, should call at the store of the undersigned and examine these Lamps before purchasing elsewhere, and we pledge ourselves to demonstrate

1st. That NO ACCIDENT can occur by explosion.
2d. That they emit no offensive odor while burning.
3d. That they are very easily trimmed.
4th. That they are easily regulated to give more or less light.
5th. That they burn entirely free from smoke.
6th. That the light is at least 50 per cent. cheaper than any other light now in common use.

These lamps are admirably adapted for the use of Students, Mechanics, Seamstresses, Factories, Halls, Churches, Stores, Hotels, and are highly recommended for family use.

The burner of the Carbon Oil Lamp can be attached to old side, hanging and table fluid and oil lamps, at a small expense, and will answer every purpose of a new lamp.

ONWARD! EVER ONWARD!

STEP BY STEP!

THE UNDERSIGNED DESIRES TO inform his old customers and the public generally that he has this spring gone into the Dry Good business and has just received a large and entirely new stock of

DRESS GOODS,

for the Ladies, embracing all the latest, prettiest and most

FASHIONABLE PATTERNS.

Any among which may be found every quality of goods the names of which it would be too tedious to enumerate.

In the line of pure, fresh and cheap

GROCERIES & PROVISIONS

I will not "knock under" to any of my competitors in this department I feel sure that I can render satisfaction.

All kinds of country produce taken in exchange for goods, and
